

experience Woking

Woking is a vibrant and modern town in the heart of green and leafy Surrey.

Woking's development began with the arrival of the railway from London to Southampton in 1838, and today the town is well connected by road, rail, sea and air to the rest of the UK and continental Europe.

Woking benefits from a fast, regular train service to London Waterloo in under 25 minutes, and close proximity to Junctions 10 and 11 of the M25.

There is a direct coach service between Woking and London Heathrow twice an hour; Gatwick Airport is an hour away by train, via Guildford or Clapham Junction; and Southampton Airport is just a 40 minute rail journey.

experience culture

A farmers' market visits the town every third Thursday in the month, when great-tasting local food and drink can be bought direct from the producers. Continental markets are also regularly held in Woking Town Centre, where you can hear French and German spoken and enjoy specialist cuisine.

Woking boasts an ever-expanding range of pubs and restaurants, both in the town centre and the surrounding villages, catering for all purses and tastes. Why not combine a meal out with a night at the theatre or cinema?

Woking is fortunate to have one of the largest entertainment complexes in the region – The Ambassadors – whose New Victoria Theatre hosts some of the biggest and best shows from London's West End, and Rhoda McGaw Theatre offers a high quality performance space for the community. There are also six cinema screens showing the latest film releases.

experience history

Local places of historic interest include Brookwood Cemetery, which opened in 1854 and, at 450 acres, is the largest in Britain. Since its original use by the London parishes, it has become a working cemetery for denominations and nationalities from all over the world.

In Old Woking, the original settlement of Woking, the ruins of one of Henry VIII's country retreats, Woking Palace, are alongside the River Wey and can be visited on special open days. Nearby, parts of Grade I listed St. Peter's Church survive from Norman times, and the building features the oldest door in Surrey, dated between 1106 and 1138.

The Shah Jahan Mosque in Maybury was the first purpose-built mosque in Britain. Completed in 1889 by Dr Gottlieb Wilhelm Leitner, and designed by Victorian architect W.L. Chambers, its green and white dome is one of Woking's landmarks.

experience innovation

Woking is perhaps best known as the home of McLaren, the Formula One motor racing team. The group's HQ – including the McLaren Technology and Production Centres – is a state-of-the-art facility on the outskirts of the town.

Innovative design also features alongside the picturesque Basingstoke Canal, where both the award-winning The Lightbox gallery and museum, and WWF-UK's Living Planet Centre are located.

In the town centre, public art includes the Town Gate, and the striking Martian sculpture, a tribute to 'The War of the Worlds' author, H. G. Wells, who lived in Woking in 1895/6 and set his novel here.

Visitors find Woking's modern, accessible town centre easy to get around. The majority of the shops are under cover, and the revitalised town centre has attracted plenty of well-known stores as well as more boutique outlets.

This guide is a publication of Woking Town Twinning Association, to celebrate its 30th anniversary. Its aims are to promote and foster friendship and understanding between the people of Woking and District and those of Woking's twin towns.

The Association provides contacts within the twin towns for individuals, clubs, schools and other organisations, and is an active facilitator of exchange visits. Membership and participation is open to anyone living or working in and around Woking, who is interested in finding out about everyday life and the special occasions in our twin towns:
